From the Prophecy

. . . Strapping on the latest improved jumping belts, we shoot skyward and looking down behold Louis Hyde poking his shiny walking stick on the pavement below. At last, one of his dainty efforts proving effective, he joins us as we are drawn in by the automatic vacuum at the seven hundred eleventh floor. Here we find the local government in session. May Lasker Schaffer is taking oath of office as she won the election through her husband's flaming oratorical power . . . Shooting in at a lower story, we are accosted by Coolidge Peverley who practically forces us to part with our postage stamp dollar bills for tickets to Marian Desautels' amazing revival of that ancient artistic triumph, The Follies . . .

Betty Allison, Julia Prindle, and Elizabeth Osborne, youthfully preserved by Genevieve Schultz's Magic Lotion were chosen by the famous connoisseurs, Charles Derrick and Alexander, to pep up the show with their clever antics.

. . . Down the school stratum, Webster Eldredge, gray-haired but undeterred, sits among the modern prodigies and gazes with fascination at the combination television radiola which presents, Professor Edward Davis expounding his theory on Immortality as inspired by the permanent inkspots in that historic spot—Room 323.

From the Will

First: Gretchen Sawyer leaves her "Swiss movement" to any girl who can copy it to perfection.

Second: Charlie Alexander and Fletcher Stevens leave their width and height to "Al" Burke so that some day he may also be an outstanding athlete and "all-round" boy.

Third: Bruce MacFarlane bequeathes his lofty demeanor to some ill-fated wretch who has no Bobby to offset it.

A Wonderful Ride

On the beautiful day of Mayforth, I decided to go for a ride, so I started off in my Jewell car and, having no particular place to go I headed for the country. How good it was to see the Green fields and the White flowers once again! After a time, I reached a forest and, parking my car, I mounted a Stepath leading through the wood in which there were many different birds, such as Robbins and purple Martins. Soon I reached a lake, and while gazing at its shining surface I heard a Russell of leaves. When I looked around, I saw a tall Crane standing among the Reads, and some Partridges in the grass. Suddenly I heard a shot; one of the birds fell, and looking up I saw a Hunter coming to pick up his quarry. Having a liking for game birds, I went over to him and asked him the Price. After concluding the bargain I started to carry my purchase back to the car, but I became mired in the Clay as I struggled to pick some Logan-berries.

As I drove along a large Carman-colored Paige passed me. Becoming angry, I began to Bleau my Horne at him, but, when I passed him I discovered he was Johnson of Albert. The anger left my Hart, because I know that he is a Goodman. We both stopped to walk across a Moore. After a while, I discovered that I had lost my watch, "Oh Shaw," I said angrily, "I would lose it when I'm in a hurry." My friend found it, however, and as he Sleuped to pick it up he said that it must be growing late. Then we both started home.

History

Since the Class of 1930 was delayed in organizing, there was no 10B social. The successful 10A social, however, made up for this.

The class had the honor of having its name engraved on the silver loving cup in both the 10B and 10A Chorus Contests.

Our new president, Don Crowther, presided over the next social affair that 1930 held, the 11B Dance. This proved to Centralites that they could always have a good time at any of 1930's dances.

As the book goes to the press, the class is preparing for a Junior Prom to be held May 10th, under the supervision of Harry Dickinson, assisted by Edson Dorman, Evelyn Shoob, Eleanor Tilton, Roger Moore, and Marjorie Washburn. You who read this, know what a successful dance it was.

History

In the spring of 1928, a group of timid, frightened children fearfully explored the halls of the "best school in the solar system." They were the members of the Class of 1930 $\frac{1}{2}$ . Before they had fully explored all the mysterious crannies of the building, they were informed that they should have a 10B social.

In order to live up to tradition they tried to run a social, but with little success.

After an uneventful 10A semester, the class, now mature 11B's, staged another social, which, by its overwhelming success, made up for the failure of the year before.

History

In September, 1928, 275 pupils entered Central as the class of 1931. During their first semester in high school, the class won the chorus contest, chose cardinal and black for their class colors, and had a social.

This semester the class held another and a better social.

From these humble beginnings the class hopes to develop into one of the best classes that has ever been graduated from Central.
